3-D THRILL

Members of the Conseil de la sculpture du Québec explore the possibilities of the three-dimensional in their latest contemporary works, on display in 'La sculpture dans tous les sens'. Artists included in the exhibition are Jacques Charbonneau, Diana Boulay, Armand Destroismaisons, JoAnne Migno, and Jean-Pierre Major. July 10 to Aug. 10. Galerie Montcalm, 25, rue Laurier, Gatineau, 819-595-7488. www.ville.gatineau.qc.ca/galerie-montcalm.htm

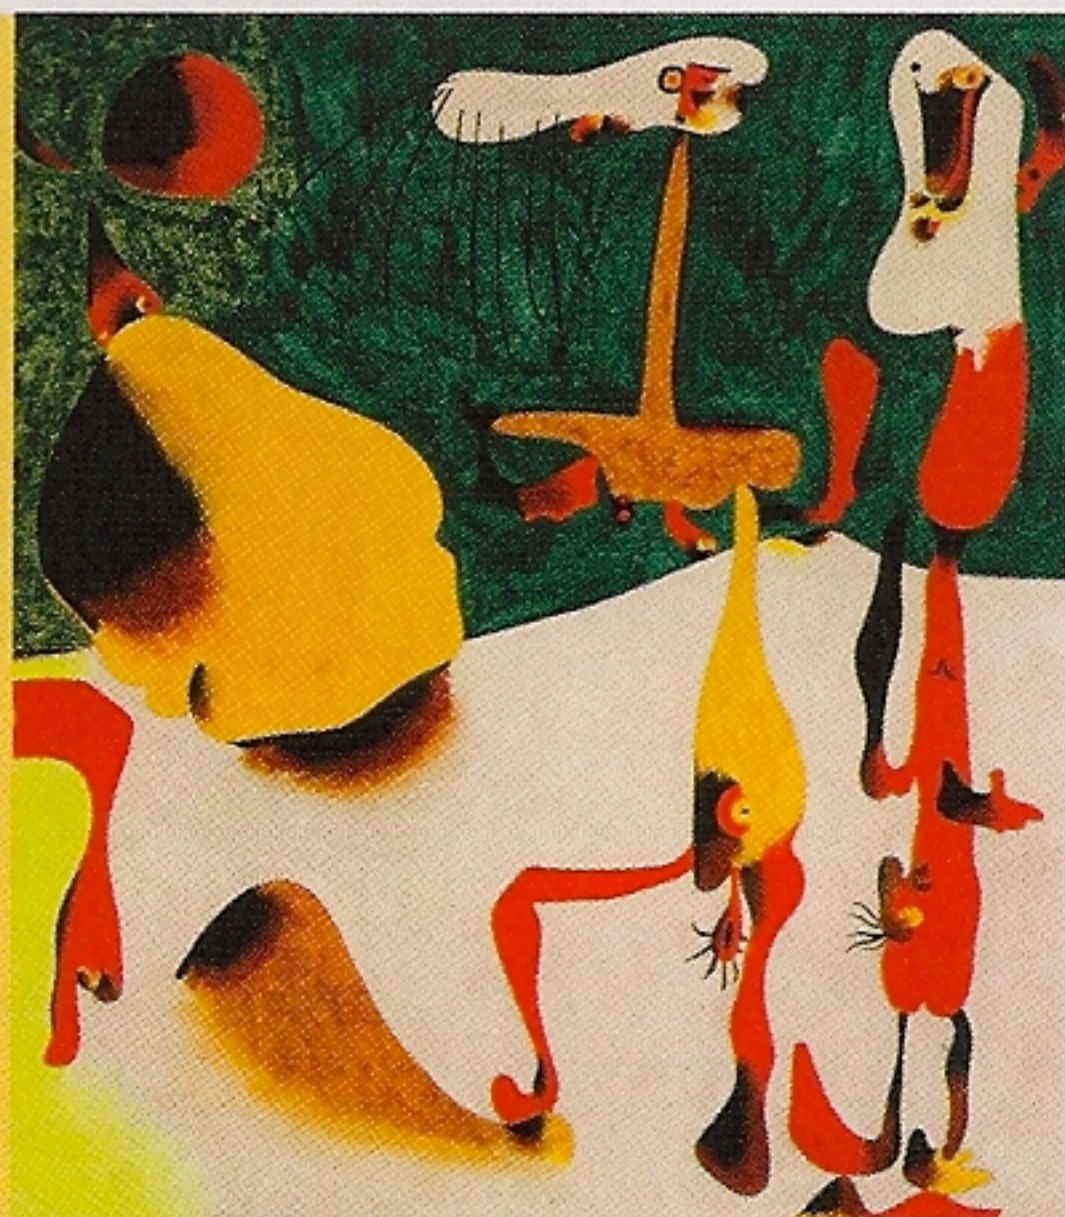

WORKS IN PROGRESS

Pencil in a visit to La Petite Mort Gallery during the first ever show featuring Dave Cooper's doodles. The Canadian artist is known for his distinctive work in various media, including graphic novels like 'Dan and Larry' and illustrations in Nickelodeon's children's magazine. In 'Drawings by Dave Cooper', the cult illustrator gives viewers a glimpse of the sketches that lead to his finished comic books, graphic novels, children's books, animation, and paintings. July 4 to 27. La Petite Mort Gallery, 306 Cumberland St., 613-860-1555. www.lapetitemortgallery.com

MODERN MAN

The politics of the 1930s were characterized by totalitarian regimes seeking to eliminate 'degenerates' and guide the evolution of the people into 'master races'. The National Gallery of Canada's 'The 1930s: The Making of "The New Man"' brings together eminent artists such as Salvador Dalí, Pablo Picasso, and many more, in works that either fed a nation's propaganda machine, or transgressed a party line. Until Sept. 7. Special exhibit admission: $15; students and seniors: $12; youths: $7; families: $30. 380 Sussex Dr., 613-990-1985. www.gallery.ca
